

‘Accountancy represents a set of principles and rules which explain and inform about historical transactions .’

Monica Rosca
Finance Manager
Amway
Bucharest

Monica Rosca
Finance Manager
Amway
Bucharest

What are you working on right now?

I am currently Finance Manager for Amway Romania Marketing SRL, a branch of the multinational corporation Alticor.

This year was a very challenging one – the economic world is going through complex optimization processes and these affect all of us.

Do people have misconceptions about accountants?

I will try to answer this question from 2 angles: inside and outside the accountant job.

From inside, as a person who works in this area, I strongly believe that there are not any misconceptions at this moment. Unfortunately, from the outside perspective, a person who knows the accountant being only a department inside a company, still there are misconceptions. However, during the recent years the number of people with old conceptions significantly decreased.

What attracted you to accountancy and to ACCA in particular?

Economics is one of the sciences I have been attracted to since I was a teenager. Once I started courses at Economic High School, things started to make more sense to me and I started to see accountancy as an ongoing challenge.

As an accountant I usually do not make business decisions, however I have a great influence on them. ACCA puts one more brick to my professional carrier in order to give valuable information to the Management.

If ACCA were a holiday destination where would it be and why?

For me the holiday means some research/documentation and adventure in the same place. The geographical location would be a castle or a fortified town on a mountain. Why this formation could be considered similar to ACCA – because of common elements: singularity, personality, history and added value, selection and expectation, but mostly the structure of it.